

Abstract of the Disclosure

5 A method of improving performance of an existing lubrication system by use of one or more lubricant injector having a measuring chamber, venting of the injector involving transmission of lubricant from its inlet to the measuring chamber. A method of operation of the injector involves such transmission. Systems embodying one or more of such injectors may include an injector/connector assembly, and an injector sealing assembly.